

Teresa had the surgery to fix her broken clavicle this afternoon! The surgery lasted about 2 1/2 hrs. She has a 6" incision along her right clavicle and has a metal plate and screws holding the bone together. She was resting comfortably when I left tonight, thanks to the anesthesia and some narcotics.

Earlier in the day, she had visits by Occupational Therapy and Physical Therapy, who helped her stand at the bedside for a few minutes. Hopefully, the surgery and stabilization of her collarbone will allow therapy to progress so she can get more function back in her right arm, hand and leg. She had some graphic design work to pass on to a client, so I brought her laptop to the hospital and she was able to take care of that, using her left hand!

Our prayers are helping; thank you Everyone!

Hugs, Barb and Jerry
